time, before it finally flew away.

We went round towards the devils cauldron and not far from the little stream, found a <sup>stranded</sup> newt, ~~which~~ blackened, and almost lifeless. We carried it to the stream where it revived a little, but when we passed it on our way back, it was again appeared to be dead.

July 6th.

Last Friday we went for a Nature Walk. We went past the works to the ice-house plantation. We saw lots of dragon flies over the lake, and in the water we found a dead grass-snake over two feet long.

On a tree stump we found a very large slug. We picked it up on a twig, it hung from it by means of the excretion from its salivary gland and produced enough to reach the ground without falling. We ~~we~~ crossed the stream near the filter-house and made our way to the main path, the undergrowth is very thick, especially the nettles. We came back past the tree stump to see if we could find the slug to take back with us, but though we found several traces of its trail there was no sign of the slug itself.
